Changes to the IBNS Forum

The International Bank Note Society Forum was created with the aim and hope that a friendly, active, online community could be created and maintained. A place where members of all ages, backgrounds and knowledge feel relaxed and comfortable; where questions can be posed and answered, and ideas and views exchanged.

Following the introduction of an approval step before posts were made public, a number of members contacted us about this change and asked us to review both that decision and to look at some ways the forum could be improved.

As a result of those conversations, the decision has been taken to

1. Remove the required approval step before posts are made public.
 This will allow discussions between members to proceed with a more immediate conversational style.
2. Increase the frequency that email digests are sent out.
 Rather than sending weekly digests to members containing lots of posts, from the 14th December, we will send out daily digests. This will mean that the emails will be shorter and will hopefully allow members to respond quicker when questions that they can answer are posted, and hopefully increasing the activity across the forum.
3. Reminder about the Acceptable Use Policy (AUP)
 The Acceptable Use Policy is available on the forum and penalties are being introduced for breaches of the AUP (more details follow).

We hope that these changes will help to invigorate the Forum, allow all members who want to participate more fully to do so and to protect the interests of all parties. If you have other suggestions that we should consider then please let us know - Why not post your idea in the "General Discussion" Forum or if you would prefer a smaller audience initially email the Webmaster.

Acceptable Use Policy (AUP)

Like any community, the IBNS has certain standards that are expected to be maintained, and the main reason why the approval step was introduced was that over recent months a number of members had failed to follow the Acceptable Use Policy either by posting offensive material or by posting commercial advertising. Neither of which are allowed by the AUP.

Identifying the offensive posts will I hope and expect be infrequent and straightforward, however dealing with the commercial advertising is likely to have some more grey areas.

There will be some obvious cases; a member posting details about new stock they have just received "Just In..." but what about the case of a member posting information about a new issue of notes and mentioning that they can get hold of the notes if members are interested?.

The line that I think should be followed is:

"if the information provided is relevant to the post or thread e.g. in support of an answer or informational and does not include pricing information, that should be acceptable."

Policing Posts

With this new system in place, it is now the responsibility of readers to identify those posts that might be in breach of the AUP whether they are offensive, commercial advertising or some other reason.

If you see something that you feel is in breach of the AUP or is inappropriate, the following icon  (a red exclamation mark) is at top of every post which will allow you to report the post to the IBNS Moderators who can take the necessary action with respect to the post.

Penalties for Breaching the AUP

The following penalties will be imposed, by the IBNS Moderators, upon members who are deemed to have breached the AUP:

1st Offence	Warning and immediate removal of the offending post
2nd Offence	90 Day Suspension from the IBNS Website and Forum
3rd Offence	Referral to Greivance and Disciplinary Committee and Suspension from IBNS Website and Forum until case has been resovled.

Changing Your Settings

If you would prefer to continue to receive your emails on a weekly basis, this can be done as follows:

- Log onto the forum (via the IBNS website)
- Go to the "User Control Panel" (Next to "Board Index" in the menu bar)
- Select "Digests" from the list of Tabs
- From the "Basics" option
- Set your preference under "Type of Digest wanted" - Daily, Weekly or Monthly. You can also decide what time of the day you would like to receive the digest.

Alternatively you can email the Webmaster directly or by replying to this email confirming how often you would like to receive the digest.

Questions or Suggestions?

If you have questions or suggestions regarding the IBNS Website or Forum, then please get in touch with the Webmaster and I will do what I can to assist.
